MPhil Graduate Awarded Special fellowship and Features in the National Aerosol Association Newsletter

Mphil graduate, Ling Tsz Yan, has been awarded a fellowship by the Abplanalp Sanders Memorial Fellowship Fund in the U.S. The Fund supports students involved in research related to the use of aerosols in consumer products or for pharmaceutical applications.

Her achievement was highlighted in the National Aerosol Association newsletter, which notes that she comes from the well-known lab of Professor Chak Chan of the Hong Kong University of Science and Technology. She is already the author of two first-author [1 accepted] and three second-author papers in influential journals.
