

Professor Tom Luo Was Awarded Hong Kong: Scotland Collaborative Research Partnership Fund

Professor Tom Luo was recently awarded the “Hong Kong – Scotland Collaborative Research Partnership” fund.

It is a project on “3D Graphene-nanotube Hybrid for Charge Storage” with a support of HK$125,000.

HK RGC and Scottish Funding Council will organize a high level awarding ceremony next month at Edinburgh Castle, with all the winners and their partners, together with Presidents and Vice-Chancellors of all UGC funded institutions in Hong Kong, or their senior representatives, invited. Principals and Vice-Chancellors of participating Scottish Universities are also invited. The purpose of this important initiative is to further strengthen strategic research collaboration between Hong Kong and Scotland.

Congratulations to Tom and best wishes for the success of this partnership!
